The S3 2000 is a nostalgic recreation of the original S3 rangefinder, first produced by Nikon in 1958. It is as close a copy as can be created today.

The quaint touches even extend beyond the body itself; the manual supplied features much of the same text and pictures as the original. The viewfinder shows framelines for the 35mm and 105mm lenses once available new for this camera, as well as for the supplied 50mm f/1.4 lens. It is the only multi-coated normal yet made in Nikon rangefinder mount, and is presumably the sharpest ever, the beneficiary of over four decades of optical improvements.

The S3 is not for a purist photojournalist. Focusing, exposure and ergonomics are not the same as today's designs. But it is not an ornament; it is an entirely operative camera to be used and adored. A throwback of the 1950's, the S3 2000 will quench the thirst of collectors and Nikon lovers alike.
