Do It Yourself 1 (Cutting the Holding Pad)

When installing stompboxes, you can save layout time by using the existing pre-cuts in the holding pad to remove unneeded portions. The cutouts at the left and right of the holding pad indicate the positions that are above the cable guides (places to conceal long cables) when it is placed in the case. Use these cutouts when deciding where to position your effect units, and cut the holding pad so that cables can be accommodated neatly when the effect units are installed.

- * If you use a knife to cut the holding pad, take care not to injure yourself.
- * When cutting the cutouts, take care not to damage nearby equipment with the knife.

Making Connections

- * To prevent malfunctions or speaker damage, be sure to minimize the volume of all devices and power them off before you make connections.
- * After you have made connections correctly, you must observe the following procedure when turning on the power. When turning the power on: Power-on the amp last. When turning the power off: Power-off the amp first.

Do It Yourself 2 (Keeping the Cables Neat)

If the power supply parallel cable and long patch cables are aligned with the cable guide, the cables can be managed neatly.
